May Organize A. B. Lodge

A movement is on foot in town to organize a camp of the Arctic Brotherhood here in Wrangell, which is probably the only town in South eastern Alaska without such an organization. Almost enough names have been secured, and the expectations are that the organization will be perfected at an early date.

W. D. Grant Stricken

Mrs. S. C. Shurick was in receipt of alarming news concerning her father Monday of this week. It came from the Elks' lodge at Juneau, of which "Marshall" Grant was a member. It appears from the telegram that a San Francisco lodge had wired the Juneau lodge that W. D. Grant was in that city sick; and inquiring where relatives could be located, the wire to this point followed. Later — A wire, Tuesday, brought the news that Mr. Grant had regained consciousness, and if all went as well as expected he will be around again within a week or so.

The Jefferson took south fifteen boxes of fresh halibut from this port yesterday. Those shipping were the Norton, 3 boxes; Sport, 4 boxes; Helen, 2 boxes; Stikine, 1 box; Comet, 2 boxes; Portage, 3 boxes.

Juneau Doctor Dies

After a short sickness, Dr. C. H. Slightam, government physician at the new U. S. Hospital at Juneau, died at his residence at Juneau, last Friday afternoon. Dr. Slightam, who came to Southeastern Alaska about a year ago to take charge of the native work, was most successful in the results he obtained, among other things having succeeded in getting an appropriation for the installation of a hospital for natives.

Rescued Just In Time

Andrew Krofen, a fisherman, who had been left in charge of the fishing boat Sea Gull, during the absence of the owner, had a narrow escape from death the latter part of last week. Wednesday night he started from the floating dock in a dory to go out to the Sea Gull which was at anchor in the bay. The weather was quite cold at the time and the wind, almost a gale, was blowing out of the harbor. He had proceeded probably half the way to the boat and stopped rowing to take his bearings and to swing his arms to restore circulation, when a sudden gust of wind swung the boat around, and he lost one of his oars overboard. He was unable to recover it, and the wind carried him out. He tried to paddle in with the remaining oar, but was unable to do so; the oar slipped from his chilled fingers, and wind and tide carried him out into the Straits.

All night long he drifted about alone in the darkness; and when morning broke he discovered that he was quite close to Rynda island, which he managed to reach after some hard paddling with a short piece of board and his bare hands. Arriving there he tried to start a fire, but found that the only three matches he had were wet and would not ignite. There was nothing else for him to do but to walk up and down the little strip of beach in his struggle to keep the spark of life aglow within him.

He was of course wet to the skin from the show squalls and flying spray of the night before, and the bitter east wind cut like a knife. Slowly Thursday's daylight hours went by, as the poor, shivering fellow paced back and forth. All night long he kept on the move. Then came Friday, nothing to eat, and the constant and ever present fear that Death, lurking at his shoulder, would seize him if he stopped to rest for a moment, almost sapped him of his reason, as he struggled on.

He was still on his feet Saturday morning when Richard Hofstad's sloop Helen hove in sight, rescued the man and brought him so town, where Dr. Dawes attended him, finding that in addition to the bad effects of the exposure he had undergone, practically all of his fingers had been frozen more or less.

When Krofen failed to show up around town Thursday evening or Friday, the town folk began to fear that something had happened to him, so steps were taken to send out a search party, and Marshall Collins took up a subscription for that purpose. Early Saturday morning the Scripps was sent out and was skirting Woronkofski Island when the Helen brought the missing man to town.

Remember Firemen's Dance

Don't forget to save February 22nd, for the firemen's ball at Redmen's Hall. The boys are busy completing arrangements, and you can be sure that you will have a good time if you attend. A swell-elegant supper will be served, and all kinds of card tables will be provided for those who don't dance. So come out.

Will Cut Piles

E. Buschmann's launch, the Frederick I, was in port Monday night, on her way to the Santa Ana cannery, where she will haul piles for the wharf repairs at that place.

The Frederick I. is a fine vessel and will be used during the coming season as a seine boat.

Humboldt Sails February 14

Word comes from Seattle, that the steamer Humboldt will sail from that port, Tuesday, February 14, for southeastern Alaska points. The original intention of the Humboldt company was to get the vessel out about the third of the month, but delay in getting her overhauling completed compelled her to miss another trip.

Gill Gets It In The Neck

Seattle, Feb. 8. In the Recall Election in this city yesterday, H. Gill, the present mayor was defeated by the reform candidate by nearly six thousand plurality.

The totals were:

Dilling, 31,400

Gill, 25,500

Brown, 4,500

The suffrage vote of close to twenty thousand was responsible for the landslide. Even the most sanguine of Dilling's supporters were surprised as they had never hoped for more than a bare plurality, but the figures give him a clear majority of 1400.

JUST PUBLISHED

Webster's NEW INTERNATIONAL Dictionary (G. & C. Merriam Co., Springfield, Mass.) surpasses the old International as much as that book exceeded its predecessor. On the old foundation a new superstructure has been built. The reconstruction has been carried on through many years by a large force of trained workers, under the supervision of Dr. W. T. Harris, former United States Commissioner of Education, and reinforced by many eminent specialists. The definitions have been rearranged and amplified. The number of terms defined has been more than doubled. The etymology, synonyms, pronunciation, have received unsparing scholarly labor. The language of English literature for over seven centuries, the terminology of the arts and sciences, and the every-day speech of street, shop, and household, are presented with fullness and clearness. In size of vocabulary, in richness of general information, and in convenience of consultation, the book sets a new mark in lexicography.

THE thief comes prepared—prepared to take your valuables. Carries the necessary tools. Is expert in their use. One of his tools is the revolver. In plain words, he is prepared to take your life. His deadly intent and expertness makes up for his revolver's awkwardness and slowness.

You have neither expertness or deadly intent. You cannot afford to stake everything upon a wrist-straining, trigger-flicking, slow-as-molasses firearm. Settle this matter to-day for the sake of your family. Get the Savage automatic. The only gun that points straight, shoots true, fires fast, without practice. It is the only gun you can shoot straight any time you pick it up.
